

TRANSMISSION LINE'S STRUCTURE ON BASE BOARD

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A transmission line structure on base board is proposed to arrange an elliptical or paper-clip shaped lead-wire wound pattern adjacent to the output end of every independent lead wire to thereby enlarge the area enclosed by the lead wires and accordingly to enhance the capacitance of the base board, compensate the circuit signals, and make shrinkage of the circuit board possible.